

Do something special.

In one of the specialized fields described in this pamphlet, you may not be in the "front line". But without your contribution neither might our Forces.

This is an opportunity for you to do something special as you learn worthwhile skills. Skills you can use throughout your life.

No matter which Command you work with, there is always the chance to travel. It's a healthy, active life with ample spare time to pursue your favourite sports and hobbies. Or just to enjoy the company of the many friends you'll make throughout the Forces.

You'll be well paid as you learn, receiving regular pay increases and promotion opportunities. You'll have four weeks paid vacation annually and many other benefits including free medical and dental care and a very handsome pension plan.

Think about these opportunities now. Then talk to us about you. A Military Career Counsellor can tell you more about the openings available now in the specialized world of the Canadian Forces.

What you need to do something special:

- Have completed a sound, basic education.
- Be a Canadian Citizen.
- Meet the Canadian Forces medical standards.

Come with us and you'll have a choice.

Choose your place in our specialized world.

The Canadian Armed Forces is made up of teams of specialists. Young men and women who have chosen their place within the Command structure of our Forces.

There are three separate Commands that make up our Forces. Maritime Command is the sea element with its responsibility to patrol our coastal waters and ocean approaches. Mobile Command is the land element, always ready to meet any emergency, military or civilian, anywhere in Canada or the world. Air Command is the air element with its responsibility for transporting personnel and equipment and patrolling our air space. All three Commands work both individually and together.

This is the specialized world of the Canadian Forces today.

Throughout this world are the men and women who support these Commands. Specialists who help our Forces maintain their efficiency. . . in administration and finance, medical and dental care, the cooks and stewards, the security specialists of our Military Police. Hundreds of young people helping our Forces maintain their "front line" effectiveness. A responsibility that may not be "front line" itself, but none the less a responsibility that ensures this capability, providing for the smooth operation and total effectiveness of our Forces wherever they may be, what ever they may be doing.

Here is an opportunity for you to learn something worth while as you make a very real contribution to this effectiveness. An opportunity to be an important part of a very important team of young Canadians, helping our Forces help Canada and the world.

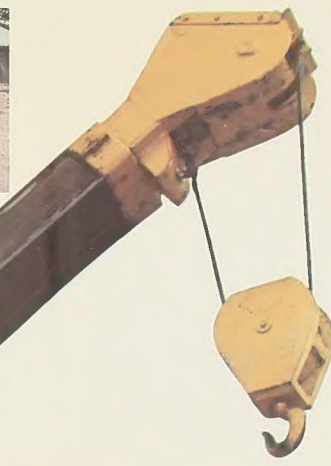

Make your choice now. Choose your place in the specialized world of the Canadian Forces.

On bases, on ships and in the field. Administration Clerks provide clerical support for personnel management and service administration. Accounting and Finance Clerks are responsible for budgeting, accounting and monitoring of expenditures within the Forces. Postal Clerks provide all functions related to mail services. They all help to keep our Forces functioning smoothly.

The Military Police have similar duties to their civilian counterparts, including traffic control, investigation of criminal cases, maintaining the security of government property. The Military Police keep us in line.

Our Cooks are culinary experts, planning and preparing meals from box lunches to formal dinners with all the trimmings. Stewards provide services in our messes and quarters including bar, counter and pantry services. Both help maintain the Force's morale with appetizing meals and tactful service.

The Forces provide free medical and dental care for all its members in hospitals on bases, ships at sea and in the field. The Medical Assistant provides support for our medical services while the Dental Assistant helps in providing treatment and keeping records. Both have the opportunity to move into specialized medical and dental fields.

The Mobile Support Equipment Operator handles ambulances, passenger and cargo carrying vehicles, fuelling tankers, tractor trailers and towing vehicles. The Ammunition Technician is responsible for maintaining and storing all munitions, including guided missiles and rocket electrical checkouts. Both help keep us in "front line" trim.

The Supply Technicians have two responsibilities. One is the storage and handling of materials. The other is the accounting related to material control. Traffic Technicians are responsible for the movement of materials, personnel and equipment. They can act as loadmasters on passenger and cargo aircraft. They keep our Forces well supplied.
